

Small Improvement in General Security Allocations in the Southern Basin

NSW Water Commissioner David Harriss today announced an increase of 3 per cent for NSW Murray general security licence holders and an increase of 4 per cent for general security licence holders in the Murrumbidgee Valley.

These increases are the result of improvements in inflows and little demand.

'Today's announcement brings the general security allocation in the NSW Murray Valley to 21 per cent of entitlement.

This, together with carry-over, means that Murray Valley general security users have, on-average, access to 89 percent of entitlement.

"In the Murrumbidgee Valley, the general security allocation has increased by 4 per cent to 63 percent of entitlement, which, when combined with carry-over gives an average access of 90 per cent of entitlement."

A more detailed assessment will be made mid month and will be announced on 17 October.

More information on water allocations can be found on www.water.nsw.gov.au